Mary Munson of Munson’s Floral brought many beautiful floral arrangements and wreaths to display at the craft fair held in the Stapleton Community Center. Joan Farmer won the drawing for the centerpiece at this booth. Gwen Gill, craft fair organizer, said there were several new vendors this year and there was a good number of shoppers looking over the wide variety of items.

A Broken Bow shopper looks over home decor items at Sublime Boutique. Melody Hansen, boutique owner, said there was a long line waiting to ring up purchases at one time during her store’s “Fabulous and Frost” event. Sublime and Country Envy will be holding a joint Holiday Open House, Saturday, December 1, at their individual locations in Stapleton, from 9:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. Country Envy will be serving cookies and coffee and there will be scratch-off tickets for special discounts. Sublime Boutique will be offering storewide BOGOs and a free gift with a $75.00 plus purchase. Shop local this Christmas!

Light snow was falling and Christmas music filled the air, as many out-of-town shoppers braved the weather to make Stapleton’s “Frosty & Fabulous” event a great success, Saturday, Nov. 17. Most agreed it was “very frosty” and fabulous. Billed shop early, shop local, and sponsored by the Stapleton Area Chamber of Commerce every local business participated. Gwen Gill coordinated a craft show at the Stapleton Community Center and there were many new vendors on hand. Businesses participating were: Country Envy offered holiday decor at 50% off.

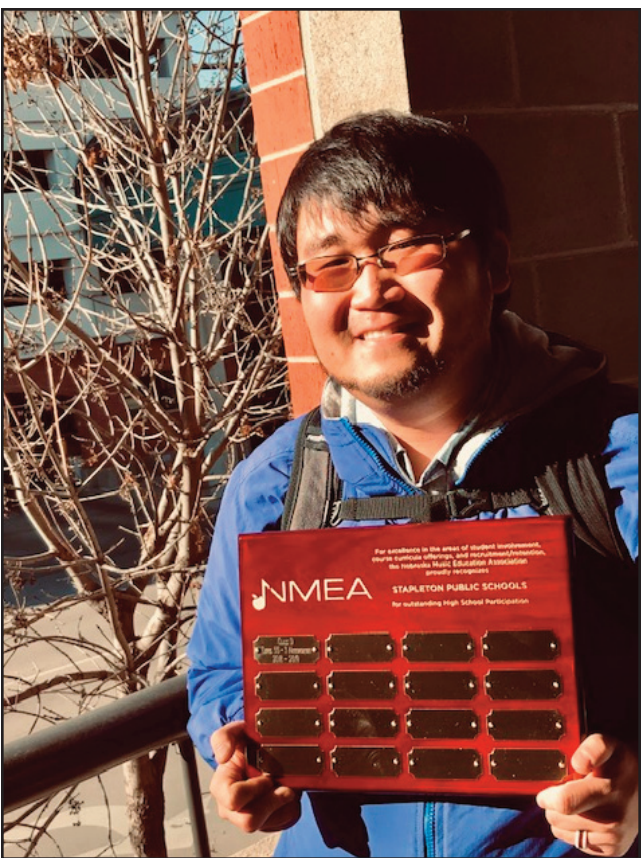

Door prize drawing winner was Lyndel Johnson. Frey’s General Store served refreshments and offered gift baskets, including Great Plains Honey Farms made in Nebraska honey. Logan County Library offered free babysitting for shoppers. Stapleton Cooperative Market & Deli served a noon special and had a sale on Village Pie Maker pies. Kimber’s offered half price fountain drinks all day. Sublime Boutique gave a free gift with a $50 plus purchase. DeJoWa Diner was open from 7:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m. and held a bake and craft sale with proceeds going to Diaper Depot. Live Fit Gym held open gym from 6:00 a.m. until 6:00 p.m. Bobbi Walters won the “Fit Basket” for current members drawing. Brett Benell won the three-month non-member membership. The Feed Bunk was open from 9:00 a.m. until noon and served refreshments and offered Christmas gift ideas. Creative Printers had a .50 table, buy one box and get one box 1/2 price on Leanin’ Tree Christmas cards, and up to 40% off select items. St. John’s Catholic Church sold their homemade frozen chicken dressing and locally grown sweet corn. Dressing and corn is still available by contacting Frey’s General Store. St. John’s youth group held a flapjack and breakfast burrito feed and sold craft items in the church basement. They took in $654.00 and say thank you to everyone for your support. Remember to keep saving your cash receipts from Chamber businesses. Write your name and phone number on the back and deposit in the box located at Community First Bank in Stapleton. Receipts will be drawn up to $500.00 and winners announced December 22.

Stapleton High School music program recognized

Stapleton Public Schools was recognized at the recent NMEA (Nebraska Music Educator’s Education Association) banquet for the level of high school participation in music classes. Stapleton has a 55% participation rate, which is rated as “noteworthy” in terms of Class D participation. Music instructor, Daniel Gibbs, with the approval of Principal Kris Walker, submitted an application in October for this award. “The award shows students at Stapleton have a high commitment to the music program and work hard to retain it,” Mr. Gibbs said. “Congratulations to the 9th through 12th grade music students who dedicate themselves to making beautiful music every day at our school.” Stapleton High School’s music program is now recognized by the state of Nebraska as a strong part of the school’s identity and a leader to other school music programs. High school choir students sang “Choral Reflections on Amazing Grace,” at the recent Veterans Day program and Taps was played by Megan Amos, Renee Cary, Saige Jonson and Kimball Sanchez. Elementary students also contributed with several numbers. Next up will be the elementary music program set for Tuesday, December 4, at 7:00 p.m. Doane Honor Choir for 9-12 grade students is scheduled in January and the KHS honor band for 9-10 graders will be held Monday, January 14.
